Dining In

Chief O'Neill's 6p 4.29.16

Ireland's oldest school of law, the Honorable Society of King's Inns, has a long-held custom of requiring its students to dine with barristers and judges to promote trust, collegiality, and respect. Chicago-Kent's Irish-American Law Student Association strives to uphold this tradition. Join us for an evening that celebrates the achievements of accomplished judges and lawyers, welcomes law students into a robust community, and bonds the two groups together.
